

PATT FOSNAUGHT brings her background as a career art educator, including fourteen years as an education curator at the Tampa Museum of Art and the Gulf Coast Museum of Art, where she managed all educational activities, to coordination of programs for Arts4All Florida. Patt has also taught middle and high school art in Ohio and Tennessee and Art Education, Art History and Art Appreciation at several universities, including Tennessee Tech, the University of Tampa, and the University of South Florida. She holds a BFA degree from the University of Dayton and the Dayton Art Institute and a master's degree in art education from Wright State University. In addition to working with Arts4All, she teaches art classes for Hillsborough Community College and is a working artist creating in a variety of media, including watercolor and drawing, and more recently focusing on jewelry design and fabrication.